

#5 features artwork by six early-career artists linked to Leicester/shire; it is a creative landmark you can visit without leaving your home.

Issue #5 of No Jobs in the Arts was created in collaboration with Modern Painters, New Decorators. For this issue, we paired artworks and interviews into a visual discussion that you can escape into.

'Right now, the work in this zine is dangerously relatable and seeps into your everyday experiences. We 100% played with that idea; you can never really get too comfortable with understanding the work inside this one, but you keep coming back to and to get lost in it.'

Ryan Boulton -
Co-lead, No Jobs in the Arts

The publication includes work by Leicester/shire linked early-career artists: Danielle Vaughan, Freya Pryce, Hannah Day, Molly Stocks, Nadine Roberts, and Phoebe Ellis. The project was curated by Amber Jesson, and No Jobs in the Arts (Charlie Collins & Ryan Boulton).

'...through this project, we provide recognition, support, and a new voice for emerging artists in the area. It is essential to continue supporting each-other and our creativity during adversity and we are providing a platform for that to happen'

Amber Jesson - Curation & Events Assistant, Modern Painters, New Decorators

Please help us to share #5. You can find the publicity images featured in this document, and additional ones, in a digital folder, here.
