

Starting Points: Ideas for a More Creative Lincoln

Saturday 19th November, 11am - 2pm.

Free Workshop, at The Collection, Lincoln.

Starting Points is a group making session, archiving collective dreams, manifestos, thoughts, wants, needs, and ideas for Lincoln.

Join us for a group making session, sharing your thoughts for a more creative Lincoln on paper. We hope the workshop will start generating the content for a tiny library of ideas to encourage future creativity in Lincoln. We will be archiving collective dreams, manifestos, thoughts, wants, needs, and ideas through zine making.

What creative support and spaces do you want to see in Lincoln? How could the city better enable its creative talent? What could that empty space be? How can we encourage more cultural activity in Lincoln? Can we transform a city using our collective creative thinking?

We'd like to help capture and share your thoughts to transform Lincoln. Starting Points will take place between 11am - 2pm on Saturday 19th November 2022, at The Collection, 1 Danes Terrace, Lincoln LN2 1LP. The event is free and will be drop-in style, so there's no need to book tickets. Pop in whenever you like, and stay for as long as feels right.

We'll have amazing creatives on standby to help get your ideas on paper. The early-career creatives supporting this event are Klara Szafranska, Jamzilla, and Lou Viner of Lincoln Zine Fest. A selection of sustainable, creative materials will be provided for the workshop.

All are welcome to join the free event. Whether you've lived in Lincoln for a long time, or attending this event will be your first time in the city, either way, we'd love to hear your ideas – come along to help us imagine a wonderfully creative future.

UK New Artists (UKNA) have partnered with us to deliver Starting Points; the event is part of UKNA's 'Taking Place' a year long programme across Lincoln and Lincolnshire focusing on collaborative explorations by creatives, audiences, communities, young people and universities.
